

POINT SYSTEM FOR THE FINAL AP RANKINGS

By Jim Gumm, Editor of THE BLITZ

The Associated Press began ranking college football teams back in 1936. Since then there have been various ways to come up with the all-time greatest programs. Regardless of the system, there will always be doubt and debate. This issue of The Blitz will just add to the naysayers and critics and frankly, we get it.

We have taken the final ranking of every year that the AP has been polling the media and applied a point system. The top ranked team was given 25 points. Number 2 gets 24 points. Number 3 gets 23 points, Number 4 gets 22 points and so on. The biggest flaw? We're missing 67 seasons (1869-1935). That right there means that this is a flawed system because the superior teams from 1869 thru 1935 are being overlooked. That's like claiming all of the greatest homerun hitters in MLB history played from 1950-2022. A list like that would not include great players like Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx & Ted Williams. It would be a terrific list but an incomplete list. The same thing can be said of these rankings because the great teams from the Ivy League are not ranked at all or are not ranked nearly as high as they would have if polls had been around when they ruled college football. Schools like Pennsylvania (#67), Princeton (#80) and Yale (#81) are included in our rankings but Harvard has never ever been ranked in an AP Final Poll. A lot of people don't know that Ivy League schools de-emphasized football around a hundred years ago. Today they play 7 conference games, 3 non-conference games and that's it. Their schools still do not participate in the NCAA Division I FCS Playoffs

All of that being said, this list does a pretty good job of ranking the top schools in major college football since 1936. It rewards consistency and playing at a high level. Schools like Alabama, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Michigan and Notre Dame are good almost every year and every decade. That kind of success will vault those schools way up the rankings. There are also schools that have fallen back in modern times and others that have moved up the ranking over the years. Pittsburgh, Duke Arkansas, Georgia Tech, and Minnesota were regular national championship contenders back in the day but these days they typically are buried in their conference standings, they generally play in bowl games but have a tough time getting ranked in the top 10.

On the opposite end of the spectrum are programs like Florida State, Miami (FL), and Oregon. These schools were mostly not competitive until the 1980s so it's been an uphill battle to get into the national spotlight but they are now considered to be elite football schools.

In our opinion there are five schools that have dominated college football from 1936 to the present and that's Alabama, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Michigan and Notre Dame. All five have consistently competed for national championships, finished in the top ten, and top five but if we want to be completely honest, Alabama, Ohio State and Oklahoma are the three programs that seem to ALWAYS be great. Alabama has accumulated 1,150 points, Ohio State 1,141 points and Oklahoma 1,136 points. All three programs seem to be competing not only for conference championships every season but they are also in the hunt for the national championship more often than not.

It will be interesting to see how much conference expansion, NIL, the Transfer Portal and the expanded playoffs will help, hinder or hurt some programs. Will the schools that have been so dominant over the past 80 or 90 years continue to rule college football or will we see some more "Johnny-Come-Lately" programs step up and join the fun. We'll just have to sit back and watch it, as it all unfolds in front of us.

ALL-TIME AP FINAL POLLS POINTS

The Associated Press College Football Poll began in 1936. From 1936 thru 1964, the National Champions was determined prior to the bowl games. In 1965 the AP experimented by releasing a post bowl poll and in 1968 the Associated Press began the process of waiting until all of the bowl games have been played and voting for the national champion. Over the next 5 pages we list where every team finished each season if they were fortunate enough to be ranked in the final poll. We have assigned a point system based on where a team finished. For example, if a team finished #1, they were awarded 25 points. The #2 team received 24 points, #3 received 23 points, #4 received 22 points, and so on.
